The world of the working solo piano vocalist.

It can be tradesmanlike, efficient, observant, soulful, brooding, laid back, cruise-y, or sometimes, just sometimes, entertaining. That task can be like reinventing the wheel or it can be made simple by an outstanding talent such as Alex Hopkins.

An interpretation of a great song or songs has always been a challenge that true entertainers accept with enthusiasm. The ability to put your own stamp on a classic is rare and the task is to live up to the song and then take it somewhere and then adapt it to your live performance. Alex Hopkins has that ability.

Alex Hopkins is a Sydney based Actor and Entertainer. In a market dominated by female performers he is a rare commodity on the entertainment circuit. He brings to the stage a youthful image and affable personality as well as a repertoire that sets him apart from all other 5 star performers. All the expected standards are there, however, it is the inclusion of interpretations of more recent classics such as; “Never Tear Us Apart”, “Losing My Religion”, “With or Without You”, “Hallelujah”, “Better Man”; or perhaps a clever re-work of “No Woman No Cry” which bring Alex’s performance to life in front of a grand piano. His audiences find themselves unexpectedly, and pleasantly soothed by his song selection. Whether it be “What a Wonderful World” or “Better Be Home Soon” the appeal becomes obvious and timeless.

Background.....

Alex’s first professional work in entertainment began whilst still in school, with early acting roles on shows such as Water Rats and Comedy Inc. In 2001 (at just 15 years old), Alex was cast in lead role of ‘Josh’ in ACTF’S production of ‘Legacy of the Silver Shadow’, leaving Sydney for 6 months to lead the Melbourne based production. The show aired on Channel 10, and was sold to the BBC, and various channels in Spain and South America.

Alex’s latest acting role was in the Logie Award Winning (Best Kids Drama Series 2005) Out There, which enjoyed two seasons of success on the ABC as a co-production with the Sesame Street Workshop from the US. The show has enjoyed recent runs on BBC Kids in the UK.

After finishing school Alex’s attention turned strongly toward music, focusing on his piano and singing. Continued Acting education and Performance training have lead him to resident live performances, and appearances in leading venues such as Star City’s Endeavour Room (private gaming) and The Sofitel Wentworth.

Alex is available for 5 star hotels or select piano and lounge bars. He can also be booked as a self-contained performer with his own PA and keyboard. Repertoire can be adapted to suit the client's requirements as Alex also has a sizeable repertoire of pop/rock if required for a party format.
